

Alexander Redlich

Prof. Dr. Alexander Redlich (ret.)

If the spontaneous group dynamics between people are no longer successful, professional and also participative support is needed. Therefore, I deal with issues of human communication, cooperation and conflict management within and between groups - from families and living communities, schools and professional work teams up to peer groups and political action groups. I teach professionals for working in team development, coaching executives, facilitation of group work and mediation in conflicts.
